

TEACHING RESOURCES FOR FAMILIES

Vanesa Lorca says: "When you believe in something with all your strength, even if your head and legs can no longer, the heart will do the rest "

Ekkono questions:

What does it mean to believe in something with all your forces?

Do you believe in something with all your strength?

What do you believe in?

Have you had any situation in which you could no longer physically but the will to arrive, to finish, made you able to get it when it seemed you could not? How did you feel to get it?

The value of Effort:

The will is the desire to do something, that something is accomplished, to achieve it. It is related to effort, courage and determination.

It is a characteristic of the personality where the person strives for a later benefit. Many professional footballers report that thanks to the will they have become what they are.
